REVIEWS CAREER OF PRESIDENT MOODY

Campus Reporter Interviews New Middlebury Executive

INDICATES FUTURE POLICY

College to Keep High Scholastic Standards

President Paul Dwight Moody indicated in an interview with a Campus reporter recently that the future policy of Middlebury College would be based upon securing students of high academic standing rather than in large numbers. While it is hoped that the college will continue to grow, the growth must not in any way endanger the progress already made, and at the same time a high standard must always be maintained.

"I have no better hope," declared President Moody, "than that Middlebury College will go on in the future as it has in the past, but it is also our hope to make quality a larger factor than quantity, although we are hoping for quantity. Furthermore every forward step taken will be first consolidated before we attempt to take another step forward."

Golf and Tennis Favorite Sports

Asked the most outstanding event of his boyhood, President Moody answered at once, a pony, not the kind generally used in classical language classes, but a real four-footed pet, a gift from his father. Although claiming to have been more sedate in his youth than now, the future president of Middlebury College found time to engage in golf and tennis, which have remained his chief sports.

Following his graduation from Yale in 1901, he went to Scotland, where his father, Dwight L. Moody had won the admiration of countless thousands some years before. While here he studied in the Free Church Theological Seminaries of Edinburgh and Glasgow for two years, and some time after his return to the United States he entered the Hartford Theological Seminary at Hartford, Conn.

During the years that followed, President Moody taught at the Northfield Schools, founded by his father, for the promotion of both religious and academic education. After serving here for six years he moved to New York City and entered into business.

In referring to his world-famous father, President Moody said that his "character, his unselfishness and his humility greatly influenced" him into entering the ministry as a life work. In 1912 he was ordained to the ministry and installed in the South Congregational Church of St. Johnsbury, Vermont.

Became Chaplain in 1916

In the fall of 1916 he was appointed by Governor Gates of Vermont to fill the post of chaplain of the First Vermont regiment, a position made vacant through the retirement of former President John M. Thomas. The following spring war was declared and he went out with the First Vermont regiment. In August 1917 the regiment was largely broken up, and President Moody became attached to the 103rd infantry, leaving shortly for France.

For six months he served with this detachment, first in training in France, and then on the Chemin des Dames, one of the worst sectors on the western front. Following this the Division moved to the St. Mihiel salient and he serv-

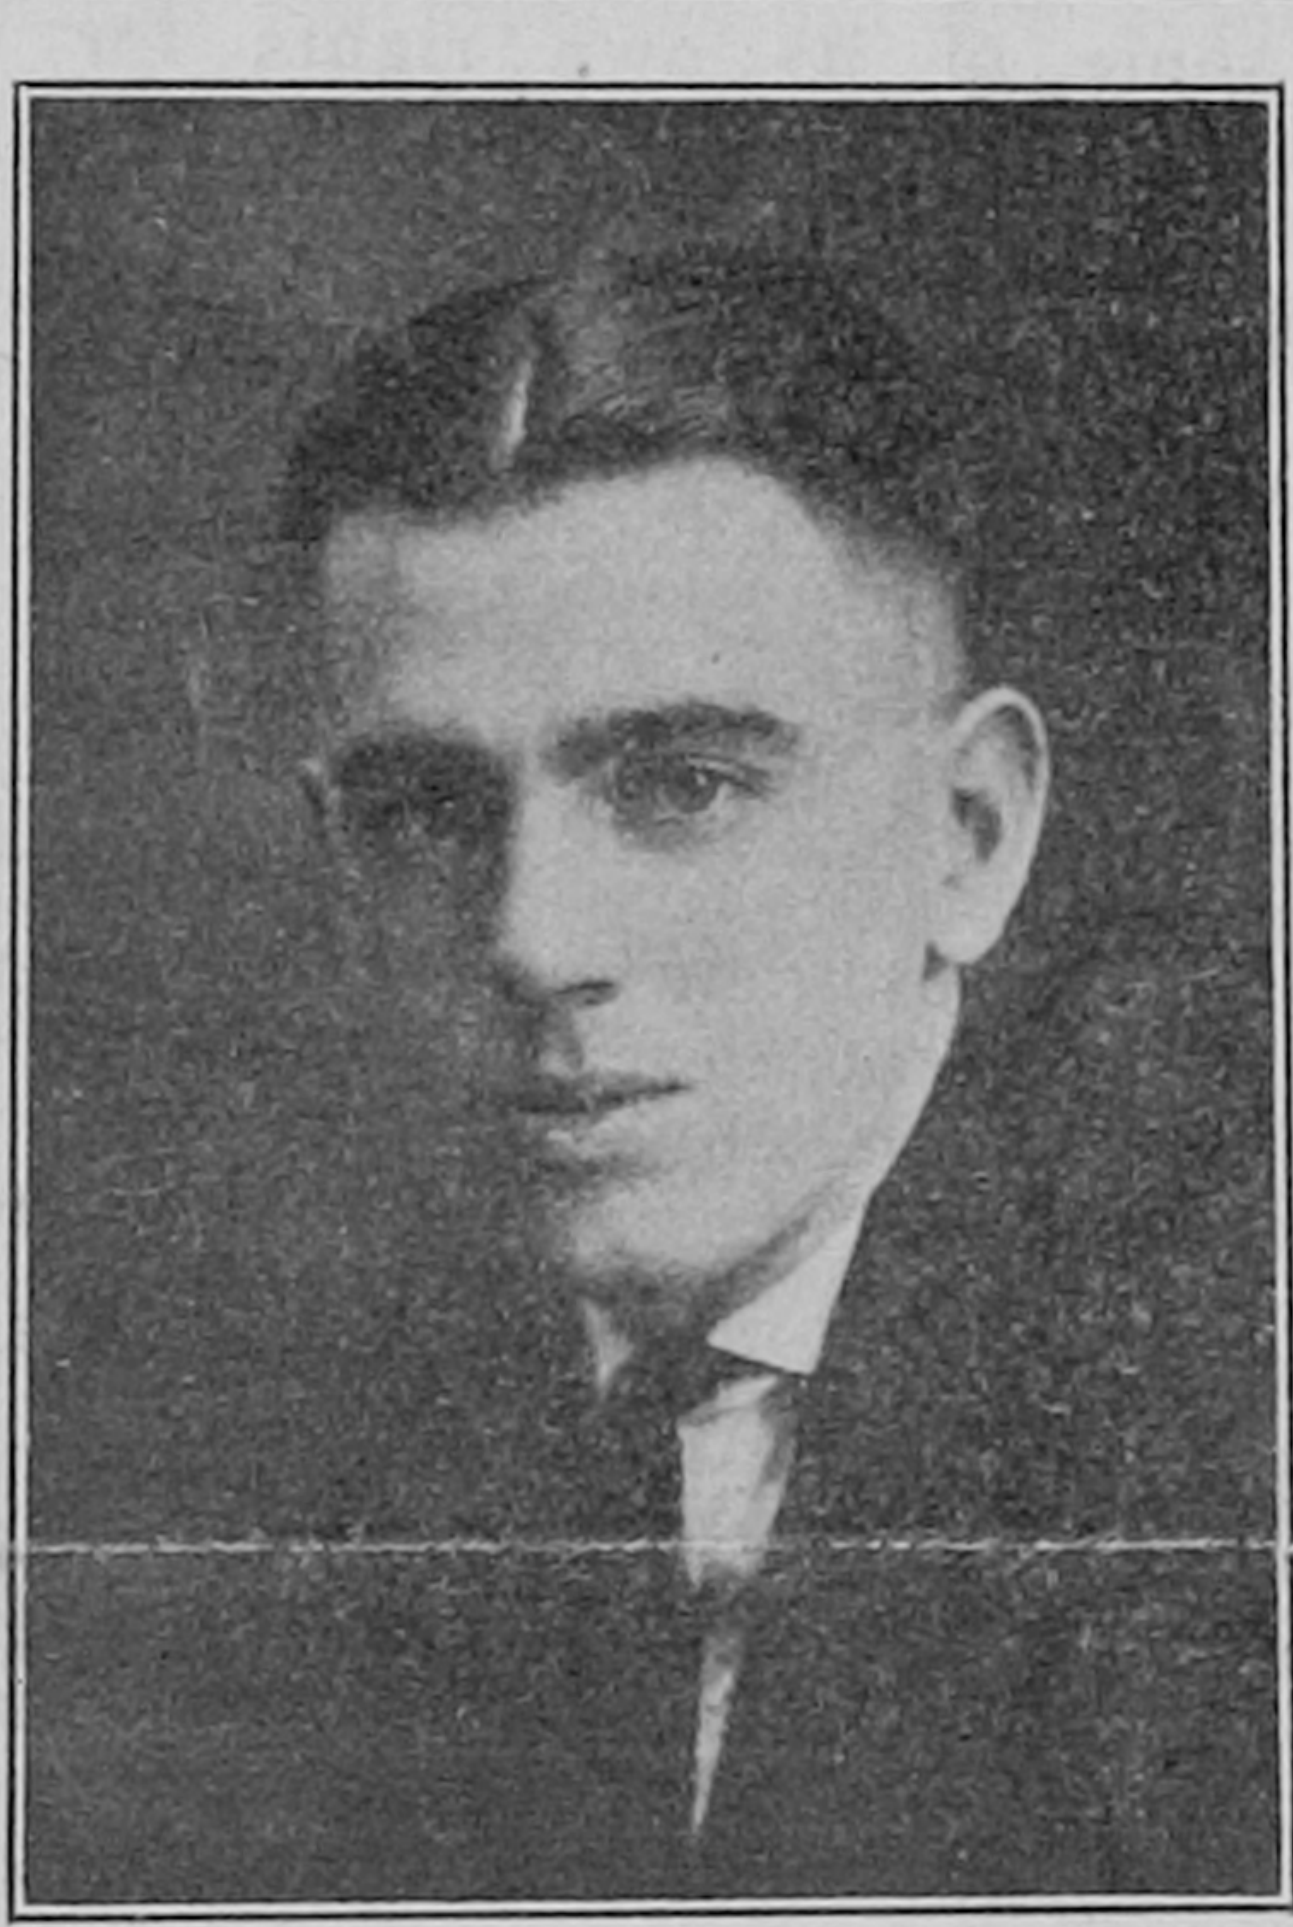
130 ATTEND RALLY-BANQUET FRIDAY

Many Alumni Return For Annual Vermont Game Rally

PRES. MOODY A SPEAKER

Coach Morey and Captain Gollnick Represent Football Team

Speeches by prominent Middlebury alumni, by President Paul Dwight Moody, Captain Albert F. Gollnick '22 and Coach Dave B. Morey of the football team, Middlebury songs and cheers and an excellent six-course dinner combined Friday evening at the Second Annual Rally-Banquet to duplicate the success of the previous similar pre-Vermont game rally held last fall.



Fitzpatrick '22, Mgr. Football

Over 130 attended the rally, including 36 alumni and many members of the faculty and friends of the college, and manifested great enthusiasm, applauding the speakers with Middlebury cheers in joining in Middlebury songs led by Hollis M. Cooley '20. The preparation of the dinner was in charge of Mrs. Maud O. Mason, matron of Hepburn Hall.

President Moody First Speaker

Dr. Wesley W. McGilton, who acted as toastmaster on the occasion, introduced President Paul Dwight Moody, Midlebury's new executive, as the first speaker of the evening. This was President Moody's first appearance before many of the assembled alumni. He spoke briefly of athletics at Middlebury and referred particularly to Armistice Day comparing the spirit of the war with the spirit manifest on the athletic field.

Following President Moody, Hon. Pat. M. Meldon '80 was introduced. Mr. Meldon branched from a discussion of athletics to a vigorous and spirited denunciation of socialism. Mr. Meldon, who is postmaster of Rutland and attended congress from 1910 to 1912, is one of the state's most prominent attorneys.

Appreciation of Mrs. Mason's Kindness

Captain Albert F. Gollnick of the 'varsity, who had come in from the banquet in Hepburn Social Hall was then called upon for a few words and spoke in appreciation of the kindness of Mrs. Maud O. Mason, matron of Hepburn Hall, who, he said, had spared nothing in helping the team, preparing meals for them when they returned from out of town contests,

In a close and fiercely fought game on Centennial Field, Burlington, Saturday Middlebury fell before a University of Vermont football team for the first time in seven years. The Green and Gold victory carried with it the State Championship title, both teams having defeated Norwich on previous Saturdays.

Two more evenly matched teams have seldom been brought together in the state, and the game, though played in a haze of sifting snow and on a muddy field that interfered with both elevens, was fast and evidenced some of the best football that has ever been shown by any Vermont team.

Moynihan and Quackenbush Out

With Moynihan, the scrappy center, and Quackenbush, whose drop kicking has been a feature this fall, missing from the line-up Middlebury nevertheless presented a very strong team and for at least half the game outplayed the University which seemed content with their two touchdowns and used defensive tactics almost completely during the second half.

After the second score Vermont used absolutely straight football, playing safe and kicking frequently while Middlebury, despite the slippery condition of the ball and the field used the forward passing and open field running game so freely that the the contest was not finally decided until the last whistle.

Fumble Gives Vermont First Score

A fumble by Middlebury on the first play in which the Blue got its hands on the ball gave Vermont their first score and put the university in the lead from which they were never turned although the 'varsity continually threatened to break through and even things up. Only a few minutes after Middlebury had kicked off to Vermont, the Green and Gold was forced to punt. The slimy ball bounded treacherously out of Papke's hands and into the arms of Nowland, the U. V. M. guard who ran to the Blue 3-yard line before he was finally downed. Three plays finally put the ball across.

Vermont scored again in the second period when Driscoll broke away for a 35-yard dash across the goal line. Gooch kicked both goals for the Green and Gold.

Middlebury Scores in Second Quarter

Middlebury secured her only touchdown just before the close of the first half on a steady march down the field from their own 30-yard line. End runs by Ashley, a 20-yard forward and a Vermont penalty contributed to bring the ball to the 2-yard line where Drost was sent across. Potratz kicked the goal.

Middlebury Backfield Plays Well

The Middlebury backfield, despite the condition of the field and the ball and notwithstanding their one unfortunate fumble that proved disasterous,

MIDDLEBURY HONORS UNKNOWN SOLDIER

President Moody Speaks at Impressive Services Armistice Day

America and the world halted last Friday at noon to pay tribute to an American, "Unknown, yet well-known", who went to war a plain soldier and laid down his life on the later of self-sacrifice and service to his country, and returned from the sacred soil of France with honors never paid to king or potentate, to be laid to rest in the Arlington National cemetery. While thousands paid tribute to this honored dead at Washington, the faculty and student body of Middlebury College assembled in the Mead Memorial Chapel and there with impressive ceremony paid tribute to those who gave their lives in the Great War.

President Moody addressing the college, took for his text, Exodus XIII: 19, "And Moses took the bones of Joseph with him." With this as a setting, he pictured the children of Israel coming out of Egypt on their way to the promised land, with a leader whom they could see, Moses, and one whom they could not see, for Joseph was the immortal leader.

"In every enterprise that is truly great", declared President Moody, "there is always the leadership of the living, and with it a greater leadership, the leadership of the dead. It was so in the last war and in the great retreat from Mons when the heroism of a handful of French and English dubbed by the Germans the 'Contemptibles', saved civilization, the French felt that Joan of Arc was fighting for them again, and the English, prosaic and unromantic, believed that among the bullets from their rifles, whistled arrows from the ghostly bowmen of Agincourt.

"No nobler words have ever been uttered on American soil," continued the president, "than those which fell from the lips of Lincoln at Gettysburg. It was he declared in words which shall never die, 'for us the living to highly

VOL. XVIII Nov. 16, 1921 NO. 8

A Dramatic Association

For many years dramatic talent at Middlebury has been confined primarily to expression in the annual Junior Play, which is necessarily limited to members of the class under whose auspices the performance is given, ocassional language dramas, also of very limited scope, and infrequent and rather impromptu variety performances which demand less of the purely dramatic and more of the vaudeville talent. It has been increasingly evident for some time that students and faculty alike have sensed the unfortunate limitation of dramatic activity at the college and have long harbored a desire for an organization such as is supported at the great majority of our sister institutions and which purpose a regular program of comedy and tragedy.

But until last Thursday these latent desires have never found expression in any coporate demonstration. The meeting called at that time of "all those interested in the formation of a dramatic association" brought out a very encouraging attendance, despite a conflicting schedule, and manifested a real interest and enthusiasm in the project. Application will be made to the Student Life Committee for permission to become a regular campus activity and that committee will do well to grant their request.

The Campus is confident that there is sufficient ability in the college to warrant the inauguration of a systematised dramatic program which will grow from modest beginnings to considerable proportions Previous experiences with Junior Plays and with one-act language dramas, during the academic year and during the summer session, have proved that thespian talent is not lacking, though to be sure, its development is sadly neglected. Nor is there a dearth of competent producers. Particularly the work of Professor William S. Burrage in coaching the annual Junior Week plays has assured the college that its plays can be well-staged. Lessons from Mr. R. L. Wayne of The 47 Workshop who formed so important an addition to the English School faculty this summer, should have a pronounced influence upon the general character and excellence of productions which the association could offer. The Campus looks hopefully for the institution of the Middlebury Dramatic Association as one of the most successful and valuable of the extra-curriculum activities at college.

One Hundred Per Cent

The Fifth Annual Red Cross Roll Call which is now in progress should and must close with a 100 per cent enrollment here at Middlebury. In a bulletin issued recently from the Red Cross headquarters several reasons are cited as proof that the organization still needs our support and deserves it just as much now as in the days when its work was brought more spectacularly before the eyes of the world. It is aiding the nations disabled service men and their families. It is active in safeguarding American life through the maintenance of several thousand public health nurses. It relieves suffering from disasters and accidents, and finally it is still helping in the reconstruction of the countries of Europe. These and many other reasons recommend it to our attention.

The place of the Red Cross has become too firmly grounded into the hearts of the American people to need further eulogy here. But when the stress of war is over, are we not prone to let any further personal obligation fade from our minds? The Red Cross is still alive and performing a vastly important work. It still needs our support in order that this work may be carried out effectively.

But aside from the more general appeal which the Red Cross must make to us, there is another and perhaps closer reason why Middlebury's enrollment should reach 100 per cent. Many well known eastern colleges have also entered upon this campaign. Reports of progress will daily be interchanged, and the final result put on record to be announced in each college at the next annual enrollment. Does Middlebury wish a secondary place upon this list?

Efficiency!

Too often one forgets the services performed in one's benefit and remembers only the inconveniences to which one may have been subjected. It is doubtful if every one fully realizes and appreciates the very efficient manner in which the Second Annual Rally-Banquet was conducted and in which the 450-odd loyal Middlebury rooters were provided for on the trip to Burlington.

There was scarcely a hitch anywhere. Adequate provision was made for all the guests at the banquet and those of the alumni who desired rooms over the night were satisfactorily taken care of. And on the following day a special train had been provided for by members of the Rally-Banquet Committee. Accommodations were entirely adequate and a special fare at considerably reduced rates made the trip to Burlington especially inviting. Tickets to the game were sold on the train, thus minimizing confusion at the gate, and orders were taken at the same time for special Middlebury dinners to be served at two of Burlington's leading hotels after the contest. And lastly upon arrival the Middlebury body found adequate trolley service awaiting them to transport them from the station to Centennial Field.

Such efficient management commends itself. The Campus congratulates Chairman Wade and the Rally Banquet Committee on its work and, with the college, expresses its appreciation.

CANCEL 'VARSITY GAME

The final 'varsity football game of the season, the Middlebury-Lowell Textile game which was scheduled for Saturday at Porter Field has been cancelled, the condition of the athletic field being such as to make a 'varsity contest impractical.

FAREWELL SERVICE BY REV. HOLMES

Episcopal Rector Speaks at Vespers Service for Last Time Before Leaving Middlebury

The Reverend Elbert Holmes, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church of Middlebury, delivered a very effective sermon on "Accepting Christ", at vespers service Sunday in Mead Memorial Chapel. As next Sunday is to be his last in this village, this was his farewell sermon to the college. He leaves to take charge of the Episcopal church of Natick, Mass.

Mr. Holmes took as his text, Matthew 27:22, "Pilot said unto them: 'What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ'?" All through the ages each individual has asked himself this question, but still the question was never more pertinent than it is today. Christ's teaching, the abiding foundation of our religion, is love and self-sacrifice. Not only is this necessary in our personal relations but also in those of nations.

These principles must be accepted before international law and order can again be established. In the conference at Washington, each nation must give up some of its own rights for the good of the whole, for the sake of peace, prosperity, happiness. "And we must look to the cross, symbol of self-sacrifice, Christ's challenge to you and me", said Rev. Holmes in conclusion.

MOYNIHAN RECOVERING FROM OPERATION ON EAR

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 16, 1921—Cornelius G. Moynihan, Middlebury's star center, is convalescing rapidly since his operation two weeks ago at the Mary Fletcher hospital here. During the progress of the Middlebury-U. V. M. game at Centennial Field last Saturday, Moynihan left the hospital, unknown to the authorities, and appeared at the game. While it was expected that this would be temporarily harmful to him, it has evidently had no ill ecects. Moynihan will probably be discharged from the hospital in about two weeks.

resolve that these dead should not have died in vain.' To that end let us work that the things which are dearest to us should not again be imperilled, or made to depend on 'reeking tube and iron shard' on bayonets and battleships, for their safety. Today men are meeting from all over the world to see what they can do to arrive at aims set for them by a Carpenter who lived two thousand years ago and was the wisest as well as best of all men."

In concluding his address, President Moody said, "Peace will only be a beautiful dream until it is the result of His reign over the hearts and lives of men. So we shall best honor him whose body is to be lowered in a few moments now into its final resting place if we highly resolve to live and if need be for that state of affairs in our own hearts individually and then in hearts and lives of others, which makes war forever impossible because the Prince of Peace reigns."

As the president concluded his address, the assembly arose, and joined in silent prayer for two minutes, following which taps was blown. The meeting closed with the singing of the hymn, "For All Thy Saints Who from Their Labors Rest."

PROFESSOR HOWES SPEAKS ON DISARMAMENT QUESTION

Very Hopeful Regarding the Outcome of the Washington Conference

At a meeting of the Y. W. C. A. held Thursday evening in Pearsons Social Hall under the leadership of Barbara Stilphen '23, Professor G. A. Howes spoke upon the question of Disarmament. He first took up the subject of land disarmament with special reference to the bearing which the reconstruction of Europe and the working out of the forces of nationalism and democracy have upon it.

The discussion of naval disarmament centered principally around Japan which owing to her increasing population must find an outlet in some manner if she does not develop commercially. Professor Howes was very hopeful regarding the outcome of the Washington Conference, believing it not at all improbable that a general limitation of armament may be brought about and the peace of the world safeguarded in this way.

Professor Sanford Elected President of Local Chapter of Honorary Scholastic Fraternity

The fall meeting of the Beta of Vermont, the Middlebury College chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, was held Wednesday afternoon, November 9 in the Latin Room, Professor Myron R. Sanford presiding. REVIEWS CAREER OF PRESIDENT P. D. MOODY

ed there until he was relieved of duty with the twenty-sixth Division and ordered to General Headquarters to serve with two other chaplains on a board which superintended this branch of the service.

Decorated by French Government

Upon his discharge from the service with the rank of major, he was decorated by the French with the Order of University Palms, grade of Officer of the Academy. Returning to the United States he became associate pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church in New York City, a position which he held at the time of his election as President of Middlebury College.

Assuming his duties September first, President Moody quickly adapted himself to his new surroundings and new duties, and he has indeed manifested a keen interest in all the activities of the college, particularly in athletics and debating. In speaking of the Middlebury-U. V. M. game, President Moody said, "Of this one thing I am sure, that the Middlebury team did its best, and I consider it better to do one's best and be beaten, than to win in those contests which do not demand our all."

Margaret Billings '22 and Barbara Stilphen '23 left this noon for Simmons College, Boston where they will attend the Fourteenth Annual Conference of the Women's Intercollegiate Association for Student Government.

MIDDLEBURY LOSES CLOSE GAME TO VERMONT 14-7

gave an exhibition of classic football. Ashley, playing his first whole game since the West Point contest, was the most consistent ground gainer for the Blue and circled the Vermont ends for several long gains while Drost, the other half back, was a good running mate for him. Their work on forward passes was almost phenomenal considering the slippery ball.

Papke also made some good gains and ran the team well while Captain Gollnick tackled hard and sure and hit the line hard.

In the line Rheinbrecht played strong defensively and Kalin, shifted to center in Moynihan's place, gave a good account of himself, as also did Lanpher, Potratz and Norton. Keppler and Gallagher on the ends kept the Vermont wings busy on the defensive and Klevenow also did some fine work.

Driscoll Individual Star

Driscoll, the Vermont quarter who accounted for 12 of his team's 14 points, was the individual star of the game. His open field running was brilliant and his two long gains around end with perfect interference resulted in the Green and Gold's earned touchdown. Gooch vied with him for honors.

Scoring All in First Half

All the scoring was done in the first half. Vermont ran back the kick off for 10 yards but was unable to gain and dropped back to kick. The ball bounded out of Papke's hands and Nowland recovered and ran to within a few yards of the Blue line before he was stopped. Here Middlebury fought desperately and held for three downs before Driscoll squirmed through for the first score. The remainder of the quarter was uneventful so far as any long gains were concerned.

Vermont failed to make much headway in the early moments of the second period and punted to mid field. Middlebury also could not gain and punted, Gooch receiving on his 30-yard line. Then Vermont started the march down the field that featured the end runs of Driscoll, his 35-yard gain resulting in the second touchdown.

Just before the period closed Middlebury started down the field from her own 30-yard line and aided by Ashley's end runs and a 20-yard forward, Papke to Gollnick, brought the ball near enough for Drost to pierce the line for a touchdown.

Vermont Plays Safe

By the time second half began it was snowing considerably. The first part of the period featured exchange of punts and then Middlebury opened up an overhead attack that constantly threatened the Vermont line.

From their own 30-yard line Middlebury gained 14 yards by an end run by Drost and a line buck by Papke. A long pass, Papke to Ashley, was good for 15 more and Papke gained another 10. Vermont held on the next play and Middlebury was penalized 5 yards for offside, and after two short passes and an incompleted forward Vermont took the ball on downs, thus blocking the Blue's determined attempt to score.

In the final quarter both teams made several long gains, the 'varsity fighting desperately, but Vermont resorted strictly to old fashionetd straight football and played safe, preventing further scoring.

130 ATTEND SECOND ANNUAL RALLY BANQUET

and throughout the season giving them the very best possible service. Captain Gollnick also thanked the team and the college for their support.

Lawrence W. Cluff '14, secretary of the Boston Alumni Association, then introduced, spoke on the keen interest with which the Boston alumni had followed the football season and complimented the team on its record especially in the Harvard and Williams contests.

Coach Morey Last Speaker

Coach Dave B. Morey completed the list of speakers. He pleaded for the extension of athletics at Middlebury beyond the state and emphasized the tremendous value of the past season for publicity purposes. As indicative of the increased prestige of Middlebury football, Coach Morey stated that invitations for games next fall had been received from Harvard, Yale, Brown, Williams, Wesleyan, Amherst, Union, Trintiy, Columbia and many other leading elevens in the east.

With such offers he expects that a very creditable schedule will be arrangned for next year. Coach Morey also announced that Dartmouth and West Point will probably be dropped from the list of games in 1922.

The toastmaster read a telegram from L. W. Severy, president of the N. Y. Alumni Association expressing regret that he had been unavoidably detained at the last moment and was unable to attend the banquet. Another interesting telegram came from Wendel, Idaho wishing best luck to the team and signed by B. M. Cooledge '88, G. D. McQuivey '06, Carl Martin '09, Ned Martin '09 and Mildred Martin Howard '19.
